Editorial
3 Are pledges made to improve dementia care realistic?

News
4 Survey finds many acute pain services are under-resourced
5 Organisations collaborate on four-year action plan for dementia services

Analysis
6 Looking for a new direction
The white paper will present opportunities to do things differently, says the RCN's new long-term care adviser Amanda Cheesley

Opinion
8 Book reviews, Policy in practice In response to the spending review, nurses must reinvent, reorganise and reform, says Deborah Sturdy

Resources
10 Diary, Noticeboard, Awards
11 Journal scan
12 Practice question: what is practice development?

Features
14 Doing time: health care in the criminal justice system
Generally the needs of prisoners over the age of 60 are not being met, but Christian Duffin found examples of good practice
21 Promoting skin health in older people
Fiona Cowdell provides a systematic approach to skin assessment and advice to help counter the damaging effects of ageing
28 A training course that empowers hard-to-reach carers
People's skills and confidence in looking after others at home are being boosted by an innovative support programme
33 Reflection on life experience as an aid to deeper learning
Sally Roberts and colleagues discuss how a placement developed at London's City University is challenging students' attitudes to older people

Careers
39 Preventive action
Myra Barker explains why a stroke prevention service has been so successful at helping clients make important lifestyle changes

Cover image: Corbis