SPOTLIGHT ON WOMEN IN LEADERSHIP

60 Women Rising: The Unseen Barriers “Second generation” gender bias obstructs women’s access to leadership in even the most well-meaning organizations. Herminia Ibarra, Robin Ely, and Deborah Kolb

68 Great Leaders Who Make the Mix Work Diversity is both a competitive imperative and a personal mission for 24 global CEOs who have made their companies models of inclusivity. Boris Groysberg and Katherine Connolly

78 How Women Decide As buyers in a B2B setting, women make decisions differently than men do. Executives at Deloitte designed a training program that raised awareness of those differences—and improved interactions with all prospective clients. Cathy Benko and Bill Pelster

86 Women in the Workplace: A Research Roundup Recent studies by business, psychology, and sociology scholars reveal some surprising findings about the attitudes, obstacles, and gender differences women confront on the job.

ABOVE
Janet Echelman
Water Sky Garden
Sky lanterns suspended from painted galvanized steel rings, Vancouver, British Columbia

HBR.ORG
Sylvia Ann Hewlett on living through a career off-ramp hbr.org/ video/off-ramp
Features September 2013

46 THE BIG IDEA
Triple-Strength Leadership
Those who successfully cross the three sectors—government, business, and nonprofit—have brilliant careers. Nick Lovegrove and Matthew Thomas

90 The Truth About Customer Experience
Touchpoints matter—but it’s the end-to-end journey that really counts. Alex Rawson, Ewan Duncan, and Conor Jones

100 Innovating for Shared Value
A study of more than 30 companies that deliver social and business benefits reveals the five mutually reinforcing elements necessary for creating shared value. Marc Pfitzer, Valerie Bockstette, and Mike Stamp

41 HOW I DID IT
Enterprise’s Leader on How Integrating an Acquisition Transformed His Business
"Deliberate integration"—rather than a takeover—made this a highly successful merger. Andrew C. Taylor

109 THE GLOBE
The New, Improved Keiretsu
With its modern-day version of Japan’s traditional supply system, Toyota is leading the way to vendor relationships that can speed production and boost innovation. Katsuki Aoki and Thomas Tara Lennerfors
115 MANAGING YOURSELF
Make Time for the Work That Matters
Knowledge workers spend an average of 41% of their time on low-value activities. Here's how to improve that percentage. Julian Birkinshaw and Jordan Cohen

121 CASE STUDY
Escaping the Discount Trap When a price-sensitive hospital resists an upsell from its medical device supplier, the only thing rising is blood pressure. Eric T. Anderson

126 SYNTHESIS
The world of consulting as revealed in House of Lies and The Firm Daniel McGinn

141 EXECUTIVE SUMMARIES

144 LIFE'S WORK
Lorne Michaels The creator of Saturday Night Live on the power of absolute deadlines, resolving creative differences, what he looks for in new talent, and more