24 Rekindle the flame: Using mindfulness to end nursing burnout
Is your work mindless or mindful? Discover the difference and how you can improve personal and professional endeavors by embracing the concept of mindfulness.
By Pamela Lichtenberg Heard, PhD, RN; Sherry Hartman, DrPH, RN; and Stephen C. Bushardt, DBA

30 Back to school! Selecting a DNP program
There are a number of DNP educational options available for nurse executives and managers—and no two programs are the same. Learn how to choose one that’s right for you.
By Carolyn M. Rutledge, PhD, FNP-BC, and Michelle Renaud, PhD, CNS

38 The great healthcare debate...For-profit vs. not-for-profit
Financial uncertainty, among other things, has caused many private not-for-profit organizations to make the change to for-profit status, but which one is better?
By Mari Scalesse, MSN, RN, CCRN

44 Consider the children: Pediatric disaster planning
Emergency preparedness programs don’t always include preparations for children. Read about how one facility created plans specifically for its pediatric population.
By Catherine J. Goodhue, MN, CPNP; Ann C. Lin, BS; Rita V. Burke, PhD, MPH; Bridget M. Berg, MPH; and Jeffrey S. Upperman, MD

Departments
6 Guest Editorial
8 Letters
10 Team Concepts
12 Evidence-Based Nursing
14 Nursing Informatics
17 Risk Management
21 Manager Matters
53 Performance Potential
55 Advertisers’ Index
56 Leadership Q&A

Next month
Cultural preference information
Calling a “Condition Help”
Easing caregiver burden

Join us on Facebook
Log onto Facebook.com
Search NursingManagementJournal
Click on Like!

Follow us on Twitter
http://twitter.com/NurMgt_online

Nursing Management is pleased to be endorsed by the American Association of Critical-Care Nurses and the Healthcare Information and Management Systems Society.

MISSION STATEMENT
To provide strategic professional information and services that nurses need to excel as healthcare leaders