Four stars, and the most bleeped interview in TIME history

Diarrheal diseases are a leading cause of death of young children in the developing world. Huge sums are spent each year fighting lesser threats, yet doctors have known for more than 30 years about a simple and inexpensive remedy that is still underused. TIME investigates why this killer is ignored, and how it can be tamed

34 The U.N.'s likely new boss, Ban Ki Moon, may have the world's toughest job

28 An Israeli clampdown coupled with Palestinian infighting has made life miserable in Gaza
